· · · The Pastor's Corner · · ·

My friends, a few weeks ago we began reflecting upon the words Christ said to St. Francis upon receiving the stigmata, "Rebuild my house" as we celebrated the 800th Anniversary of his death. In addition, and along these lines we presented the Parish Annual Review of both what has been done, what we are doing, and where we envision ourselves. Last week, as we welcomed Fr. Emmanuel representing the African Benedictine Sister of Our lady Help of Christians for our Mission weekend, Fr. Emmanuel instilled in us, just by his presence the missionary spirit needed to 'rebuild', helping us to see the support we give can help others in other communities to, in a sense, 'rebuild'.

Our focus on "Rebuild my House" presents us with a unique opportunity to look at our Parish here and now in order to discover how can we "rebuild" our Parish in the heart of the Litchfield County; and we need to begin by looking at ourselves- we need to 'rebuild' our homes, personal and the domestic Church. Our personal 'home' is, as St. Paul says in the Letter to the Corinthians, 'our bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit'- literally our own selves. While the domestic Church refers to the Church that is built in the home as Christ is the foundation, of the love of the family.

I say that the 'rebuilding' begins with us because we have to see that God empowers by implanting his image within us and chooses us. The passage today, although is misinterpreted by Priests who get up and talk about money, Jesus refers to something different. The inscription on the coin is, 'yes', Caesars, but how Jesus responds is quite intriguing: "Repay to Caesar what belongs to Caesar and to God what belongs to God." What he is referring to is that the coin although bears the image of Caesar, it is due to him as a materialistic and human invention; while what is owed to God is the inscription that He imprints within us. St. Paul in his letter to the Thessalonians encourages them to 'work with Faith, labor in love, and endure in hope' because, "you were chosen". In the same way, Isaiah the Prophet prophesizes that God has "anointed" Cyrus to, essentially, 'rebuild' the Spirit within His chosen people Israel.

We are chosen my friends, and by being chosen, empowered to rebuild within us our faith, hope, and love in God who has first called us. We need to choose Him above others or else we will be succumbed to the same 'ruins' St. Francis had to build off of. We need to focus on the Church in the modern world- still exercising what has been implemented before, but drawing the people of this time to become, "living stones" in the house of God. So, may we rebuild ourselves and our homes in God, and together, we will be empowered by Him, through His inscription in us, to accomplish Christ's vision to St. Francis, "Rebuild my house."

NEWS FROM THE ARCHDIOCESE OF HARTFORD OCTOBER 17 - 23, 2026

Liberty Bank Seeds New Scholarship Fund for Catholic Academy of Hartford

- Story by Shelley Wolf

With smiles all around, David W. Glidden, president and CEO of Liberty Bank and president of the Liberty Bank Foundation, delivered a grant check on Sept. 21 for $100,000 to Archbishop Christopher J. Coyne to seed the Catholic Academy of Hartford's new scholarship fund. The fund will be managed by the Connecticut Catholic Foundation.

Standing outside the school on Asylum Avenue in Hartford, Glidden handed over a jumbo-size replica of the check as staff from the Archdiocese of Hartford, officials from its Office of Catholic Schools and others looked on.

"Liberty Bank and community partners like the Connecticut Catholic Foundation are perfectly aligned when it comes to our shared commitment to improving the lives of individuals and families in our communities," Glidden said in a prepared statement.

With branches in Connecticut and Massachusetts, Liberty Bank is a large community bank with corporate headquarters located in Middletown. The bank also operates the Liberty Bank Foundation, noted for its philanthropic giving in the communities in which it serves.

"Team Liberty is proud to build on our longstanding commitment to Catholic Charities – this time by ensuring younger students have access to affordable and supportive educational opportunities right here in Hartford, and at an early age," Glidden said.

Glidden praised Archbishop Coyne for having the vision to create a new educational destination in the capital city that will not only serve children but also revitalize the surrounding neighborhood. He predicted, "It will have a profound impact in this community for generations to come."

Expressing gratitude for the large donation, Archbishop Coyne said, "This means a lot. It's the first major donation from a bank right here in Hartford. We're very, very grateful. This generous contribution will help to ensure that all families in Hartford have access to quality education, regardless of their ability to pay."

"For Hartford, we're offering an alternative education. Catholic school outcomes are very good, and we want to bring that to Hartford, especially to the North End," said Archbishop Coyne, stressing the merits of Catholic schools.

"This is an extremely generous grant from Liberty Bank. They're the anchor," said Paul McMahon, executive director of the Connecticut Catholic Foundation, a nonprofit philanthropy arm of the Archdiocese of Hartford. Connecticut Catholic Foundation created its program, the Hartford Neighborhood Families Scholarship Program, expressly for the Catholic Academy of Hartford.

Describing the new program as an "endowment fund," McMahon noted it will be used to educate the children of Hartford in the hopes that a Catholic education will help them to achieve their potential. "I think a good, sound Catholic education is going to make a very big difference in the lives of many," McMahon added.

In September 2025, the Archdiocese of Hartford purchased a former three-story office building at 765 Asylum Ave. for use as a school. In October 2025, Archbishop Coyne announced the creation of a new Catholic school, in keeping with his promise to bring Catholic education back to the city of Hartford after a more than 10-year absence.

The school property is located diagonally behind the Cathedral of St. Joseph. Plans are to renovate the former office building before opening it as a school, possibly in the fall of 2028.

The Catholic Academy of Hartford will initially welcome Hartford students in pre-kindergarten through the second grade. The plan is to add one grade each year, expanding up to the eighth grade.

The archdiocese is aiming to serve Hartford residents first, regardless of their faith tradition or creed, and to make a Catholic school education more affordable through a "tuition-accessible, sliding scale" tuition model that adjusts for families of all income levels.

"I'd like to encourage other organizations to donate to the school," Archbishop Coyne added. "It's all going to the kids."

To donate to the Catholic Academy of Hartford, visit catholicacademyofhartford.org*.*
