“I’m still letting it sink in”

Father Jan Carlo Pérez reflects on Priesthood Ordination Mass

SCRANTON – Surrounded by family, friends, fellow clergy, and faithful from across the Diocese of Scranton, Father Jan Carlo Pérez was ordained to the Priesthood on Saturday, June 27, 2026, at the Cathedral of Saint Peter in Scranton.

The Ordination was conferred through the imposition of hands and the invocation of the Holy Spirit by the Most Rev. Joseph C. Bambera, Bishop of Scranton, at a joyful 10:00 a.m. liturgy.

The Ordination Mass marks the beginning of Father Pérez’s ministry as a priest of Jesus Christ in service to the Church.

Several hundred people were in attendance, including many from the East Stroudsburg area, where Father Pérez grew up and has been formed in faith.

A bus carrying more than 30 parishioners from Saint Matthew Parish made the hour-long journey to Scranton, while many others traveled on their own, arriving early to sit together prominently near the front right side of the Cathedral.

The Mass itself was marked by both solemnity and beauty.

The Diocese of Scranton Festival Choir and instrumentalists led powerful musical selections, including a stirring entrance hymn, “Lift High the Cross,” underscored by strong percussion that filled the Cathedral.

In his homily, Bishop Bambera reflected on the mystery of vocation and the trust required of those called to priestly ministry. Drawing from the Scripture readings picked by Father Pérez for the liturgy, the Bishop reminded him that God, not human strength alone, brings to completion the work He begins in each vocation.

“At the heart of authentic discipleship,” the Bishop said, “there must be a radical trust and belief that it is God who has begun the good work in us and God – not we ourselves – who will bring it to fulfillment.”

Following the homily, Father Pérez made his promises of priestly service, including obedience to the Bishop and commitment to the celebration of the sacraments, before prostrating himself on the Cathedral floor during the Litany of Supplication as the Church prayed for the outpouring of God’s grace.

Solemn Novena to Saint Ann begins Friday in Scranton

SCRANTON – For more than a century, Catholics from throughout northeastern Pennsylvania and beyond have made their way to Saint Ann’s Basilica each July, bringing with them prayers of thanksgiving, petitions for healing and hope, and a deep devotion to the grandmother of Jesus Christ.

That tradition continues this week as the annual Solemn Novena to Saint Ann begins Friday, July 17, and continues through Sunday, July 26, the Feast of Saint Ann.

Thousands of pilgrims are expected to visit the Scranton Basilica during the ten-day celebration, participating in Masses, Novena devotions, opportunities for the Sacrament of Reconciliation and special liturgies that have made the annual Novena one of the Diocese of Scranton’s most beloved spiritual traditions.

This year’s Passionist preachers are Father Rick Frechette, C.P., a Passionist priest and physician whose ministry has served the people of Haiti for more than three decades, and Father Jack Conley, C.P., a longtime Passionist mission preacher and superior of Saint Vincent Strambi Retreat in Chicago.

Together, they will reflect on the 2026 Novena theme, “Reading the Signs of the Times,” exploring how faith speaks to many of today’s greatest challenges, including division, fear, loneliness, Christian witness, and the Real Presence of Jesus.

Along with the daily schedule of Masses and Novena services, several special celebrations are planned throughout the week.

On Tuesday, July 21, Bishop Kurt Burnette of the Byzantine Catholic Eparchy of Passaic will celebrate the Divine Liturgy of the Byzantine Rite at 6:30 p.m., offering pilgrims an opportunity to experience one of the Church’s beautiful Eastern liturgical traditions.

Where his vocation began, his priesthood begins

HAZLETON – The church where Rev. Jose Luis Batista Castillo, O.S.J., first encountered the spirituality that shaped his vocation became the place where that calling reached its fulfillment on July 1, 2026.

Before a standing-room only crowd at Saint Gabriel Church in Hazleton, the principal worship site of Saint Pius of Pietrelcina Parish, the Most Rev. Joseph C. Bambera, Bishop of Scranton, ordained Batista to the priesthood for the Oblates of Saint Joseph.

The Ordination Mass carried special significance for the newly ordained priest, whose family immigrated to Hazleton from the Dominican Republic during his childhood. It was while the former Annunciation Parish was under the pastoral care of the Oblates of Saint Joseph that he first came to know the religious community and began discerning God's call.

"Today I became more conformed to Christ, for the glory of the Lord and also for the service of His people," Father Jose said following the Ordination Mass.

He explained that his vocation grew through prayer and a growing desire to give his life in service to God and the Church.

"I really wanted to give myself to God and the people. As I was praying and discerning in my life, I received the call to the priesthood. At first, it was a shock to me. But then, little by little, the Lord let me know He wanted me to give myself to Him," he said.

The Ordination Mass included the ancient rites of the Church, including the Litany of the Saints, the Prayer of Ordination, the laying on of hands by Bishop Bambera and the concelebrating priests, and the anointing of the new priest's hands with Sacred Chrism.

Reflecting on the Litany of the Saints, during which he lay prostrate before the altar, Father Jose described it as a moment of complete surrender.

"For me, that was a beautiful moment of just giving myself to the Lord and letting Him do the rest," he said. "I asked for the intercession of all the saints to help me be open to the grace of God."

One of the most emotional moments came at the conclusion of the Mass, when the newly ordained priest imparted his first priestly blessing on his parents.

"I've been in the seminary for a long time, almost 11 years now, and they were always asking 'When are you going to be ordained,'" Father Jose explained. "For them to have the opportunity to witness my ordination, it was a very touching moment for me and also for them. When we are kids, our parents are the one who bless us and now I'm the one blessing my parents!"

Father Jose said he left the Ordination Mass with profound gratitude.

"I feel welcomed by God, by the Church and by His people," he said. "Tonight I'm very grateful to God, and to the Bishop, and to all the people who made it possible for this to happen."

Diocese of Scranton welcomes its newest priest

The essential moment of the Ordination Mass followed: Bishop Bambara laid his hands upon Father Pérez's head, joined by the other priests of the Diocese present, invoking the Holy Spirit in the ancient rite that marks a man forever as a priest of Jesus Christ.

After the Prayer of Ordination, Father Pérez's hands were anointed with Sacred Chrism, and he was vested before receiving a chalice and paten – signs of his participation in the Eucharistic sacrifice.

A MOMENT STILL SINKING IN

In an interview immediately following the liturgy, Father Pérez described the experience as overwhelming and difficult to fully absorb.

"It's kind of surreal to have actually gone through this after imagining it so many times," he said. "To actually undergo all of these signs and symbols and be welcomed into the Order of Presbyters ... it's really something. I'm still letting it sink in."

He pointed to the anointing of his hands as a moment that especially impacted him.

"That really struck me, that these hands have been set aside for God's will," he said.

Father Pérez also spoke with gratitude about the presence of so many parishioners from East Stroudsburg who traveled to be with him.

Father Jan Carlo Pérez said one of the most meaningful moments of the Ordination Mass was when Bishop Joseph C. Bambara used Sacred Chrism to anoint his hands on June 27, 2026. (Photo/Mike Melisky)

"It's incredible. I looked out and thought, who are all these people who have come for me?" he said. "It really means a lot to me that so many people would come out to pray for me."

At the conclusion of Mass, Bishop Bambara announced that Father Pérez was being assigned as Assistant Pastor of Our Lady Queen of Peace Parish in Brodheadsville. Father Pérez said he looks forward to ministry in the Monroe County region, especially in Hispanic ministry and youth outreach.

"There are people who have been astranged from the Church or astranged from God for long periods of time and they can be called back," he said. "If I can participate in that, I think that's the greatest thing I could possibly do in my life."

'WE ARE SO PROUD'

Among those attending the Ordination was Angie Rose, a parishioner of Saint Matthew Parish, who described the Mass as deeply moving.

"We are so proud," she said. "This is like being a mama almost. He is part of the church family."

She credited parish life and Eucharistic Adoration for fostering vocations and spiritual growth in the community.

"It makes us so proud to be Catholic," she said. "You want to go to the rooftops and say, I'm a practicing Catholic!"

For many in attendance, the Ordination Mass was also their first experience inside the Cathedral of Saint Peter – an experience they described as powerful and faith-affirming.

"This is so special," Rose added. "We can see God's hand. God is not dead. He is alive and He is working."

Young Catholics discover they are not alone during Quo Vadis & Fiat Days

Bambera, priests, religious sisters, and seminarians who made the summer camp experience possible. (Photo/Dan Gallagher)

SCRANTON — For many Catholic teenagers, living their faith can sometimes feel like a lonely experience.

As they navigate school, sports, and peer groups, they may wonder if anyone else their age shares a love for Jesus Christ and the Church.

For 53 high school students from across the Diocese of Scranton, Quo Vadis and Fiat Days offered a reassuring answer this summer: You are not alone.

Held June 29 – July 1, 2026, at Marywood University, the Diocese's annual vocation camps brought together 34 young men for Quo Vadis Days and 19 young women for Fiat Days to pray, build friendships and reflect on how God may be calling them to serve Him.

Through daily Mass, Eucharistic Adoration, talks, games, small-group discussions and time with priests, seminarians and religious sisters, participants were invited to listen more closely for God's voice while discovering a community of young Catholics striving to do the same.

"It feels great because, number one, I'm not alone out there," Jake Sanchez of Saint Matthew Parish in East Stroudsburg, said. "I have other people to share my thoughts and ideas with. It's nice to know that there are other people with a strong faith in God."

Sanchez attended Quo Vadis Days for the second consecutive year. He said returning for a second summer was an easy decision.

"Everything about it, the experience, making friends, Mass, everything about it is amazing. I think everyone should try it out, even if they think they won't like it, you never know until you try it," Sanchez said.

Throughout the three-day experience, students learned about the many vocations within the Church, including marriage, priesthood, diaconate, and religious life, while also reflecting on how God is calling them to holiness today.

For Eddie Scavone of Our Lady of the Snows Parish in Clarks Summit, one of the most meaningful moments was Eucharistic Adoration.

"I really enjoy the Holy Hour," he said. "It's really nice to just sit in the Chapel during Adoration and enjoy the presence of God and have confessions at the same time."

Still discerning what his future holds, Scavone said the camp has helped him approach that process with greater confidence.

"They're definitely giving me good tips and ideas for how to correctly discern what God is calling me to do," he added.

For the young women attending Fiat Days, the opportunity to spend time with religious sisters offered a unique perspective on vocational discernment.

Emily Lopez of Saint Teresa of Calcutta Parish in Scranton returned for her third year because she says each experience has drawn her closer to Christ.

"I think I look forward to it because the connection I feel each year toward God gets deeper," Lopez explained. "I just learn more. I learn how to connect with Jesus and learn more about the Holy Spirit. It's really nice and you feel peaceful."

Lopez said one of the greatest blessings of Fiat Days is realizing there are many other teenagers striving to grow in faith.

"When you feel like you're alone, it's hard because you think you're the only teenager who believes in God," she said. "But when you surround yourself with people who are just like you and are also sinners but at the same time trying to get closer to God, it feels more relieving. You realize, 'I'm not the only one.'"

First-time participant Emily Barrett from Saint Carlo Acutis Parish in Olyphant echoed that sentiment.

"I think it's pretty awesome to spend time with other girls my age who share the same faith," Barrett said. "It's good to talk to them and get excited about it and just have fun with it."

She described the opening Mass of Fiat Days as one of the highlights of the camp.

"I just felt like that was the closest I've felt to God in a while," she said. "I go to church often, but I really felt something different that time."

Rite of Candidacy marks milestone in seminarian's journey to Priesthood

SCRANTON – Dozens of high school students who spent time discerning their vocation during the Diocese of Scranton's annual Quo Vadis and Fiat Days summer camp this summer were given a firsthand glimpse of what answering the call to the Priesthood can look like.

During a Mass celebrated by the Most Rev. Joseph C. Bambera, Bishop of Scranton, on June 30, 2026, at Marywood University, Diocesan seminarian Roberto Carlos Acevedo Ruiz took part in the Rite of Admission to Candidacy for Holy Orders, a significant milestone in his journey toward the priesthood.

Acevedo Ruiz, whose home parish is Saint Pius of Pietrelcina in Hazleton and who studies at Pope Saint John XXIII National Seminary in Weston, Mass., was presented to Bishop Bambera by Father Alex J. Roche, Diocesan Secretary for Clergy Formation, Rector of Saint Pius X Seminary, and Director of Seminarians.

After being called forward by name, Acevedo Ruiz stood before the Bishop and publicly affirmed his willingness to continue preparing for priestly ministry, responding, "I do," as Bishop Bambera questioned him during the Rite.

Drawing from the day's Gospel from Saint Matthew, in which Jesus calms the storm at sea, Bishop Bambera explained to those attending that they never face life's challenges alone.

"No matter how harsh the winds and the waves of the storm that envelop you, Jesus walks with you. Jesus is with you in the midst of your struggles," Bishop Bambera said.

Addressing Acevedo Ruiz directly, the Bishop encouraged him to place complete trust in the Lord as he continues discerning his vocation.

"Roberto, trust Him, trust Him, for He will never let you go," Bishop Bambera added.

The Bishop explained that the Rite of Admission to Candidacy marks the Church's formal recognition that a seminarian has demonstrated the qualities necessary to continue preparing for ordained ministry. At the same time, he said, the Rite challenges the candidate to deepen his relationship with Christ and strengthen his commitment to serving God's people.

"Open your heart, Roberto, to the Lord's call to serve the Church," Bishop Bambera said. "Trust today like never before in His grace and mercy."

Following the Mass, Acevedo Ruiz described the celebration as a profound moment in his vocational journey.

"I am very happy because responding to God's call to the priesthood is a profoundly transformative experience," he said. "I have discovered my life's purpose and desire to dedicate myself to God and to serve others."

Calling the Rite of Candidacy a "huge step," he said he believes God continues to shape his heart for priestly ministry.

"God is forming within me what He has done with me, how He has called me and all the beautiful new things He has done in my life," Acevedo Ruiz said.

He also expressed gratitude to those who have accompanied him throughout his discernment.

"I give thanks to God for my family, who support me, for the communities in the different parishes where I serve, for their prayers, for my Bishop, and for the guidance of Father Alex, who has been a great blessing in my life," he said.

Vocations Golf Classic unites Diocese in support of seminarians

DORRANCE TOWNSHIP – Approximately 100 golfers took to the fairways of Blue Ridge Trail Golf Club on July 10, 2026, for the annual Vocations Golf Classic – John Yourishen Memorial Tournament – enjoying a day of friendly competition while investing in the future priests of the Diocese of Scranton.

The tournament raises funds to support the education and formation of the Diocese's seminarians, along with other vocation initiatives including Quo Vadis and Fiat Days and the newly established Saint Pius X Seminary in Scranton.

Just as importantly, the golf tournament gives supporters the opportunity to spend time with the seminarians, priests, and Diocesan staff.

"We are blessed in the Diocese of Scranton to have 16 seminarians right now. That is one of the highest numbers that we've had in years," Father Ryan Glenn, Director of Vocations, said. "It is a reality that there is a significant financial cost."

Father Alex Roche, Diocesan Secretary for Clergy Formation and Director of Seminarians, said the tournament benefits both those preparing for the priesthood and the faithful who make their formation possible.

"It's good for them (seminarians) to see and meet the people who are supporting their education and formation," Father Roche said. "But it's also good for the supporters to meet the men that someday might be assigned to their parish."

Many golfers return year after year because of that unique opportunity.

"I've been playing in this tournament for the last ten years," Don Prescavage of Saints Peter and Paul Parish in Plains, said. "It is a big commitment to be a priest. We just had one of our parishioners commit to becoming a seminarian, so the tournament means even more to me this year."

Jordan McAndrew of Saint John Paul II Parish in Dunmore also said this year's tournament carried special meaning as two of his friends prepare to enter the seminary.

"Everyone here is extremely excited about being able to support the Diocese and support the seminarians who are going to be part of our parishes within the next couple years," McAndrew said. "There is a huge sense of community, a huge sense of involvement and a lot of pride in our Diocese today."

For the seminarians in attendance, the golf tournament served as a visible reminder that vocations are nurtured by the entire Church.

"It's wonderful to see so many people supporting vocations," seminarian Matthew Kelly said. "This is a great time to connect with each other."

"It means a lot to me. It's good to see that there is a lot of support for us and to know that so many people around the Diocese are willing and able to support us," seminarian Liam Barry added.

A complete listing of tournament sponsors will appear in the Aug. 20, 2026, edition of The Catholic Light.

Honoring the legacy of Immaculate Heart of Mary Chapel

SCRANTON – For more than 70 years, Catholics found a spiritual home inside Immaculate Heart of Mary Chapel in West Scranton, where they celebrated baptisms and weddings, mourned loved ones at funeral Masses, and gathered week after week around the altar in prayer.

On Saturday, June 27, 2026, those memories filled the small church one final time as approximately 150 parishioners gathered with gratitude, but also sadness, to celebrate the Closing Mass of the IHM Chapel, which was a secondary worship site of Saint Patrick Parish in West Scranton.

Father Richard E. Fox, Pastor of Saint Patrick Parish, served as principal celebrant and homilist of the 5:30 p.m. Mass. Concelebrating was Father Joseph R. Kakareka, a retired Diocesan priest, who has assisted at the Chapel for many years.

“Thank you all for coming and being part of this sad Mass,” Father Fox said in welcoming the faithful. “It is certainly not a happy occasion for anybody.”

The history of Immaculate Heart of Mary Chapel dates back to 1953, when it was constructed at the direction of Bishop William Hafey, Fourth Bishop of Scranton, following a devastating fire that destroyed the nearby Saint Ann’s Maronite church.

In constructing the IHM Chapel, Bishop Hafey had hoped the new church would lead to a cooperative effort involving Saint Patrick Parish and Saint Ann’s Maronite Parish – but that did not materialize – with hundreds of letters exchanged between Scranton, Rome, Beirut, and Washington, D.C.

Fast forward to 2026, the decision to close Immaculate Heart of Mary Chapel came after discussion and consultation through the Diocese of Scranton’s Vision 2030 Pastoral Planning Process. After examining Mass attendance trends, the significant financial challenges facing Saint Patrick Parish, and mounting maintenance needs at the Chapel, the recommendation was made to close the worship site.

Rather than dwelling on those realities during his homily, Father Fox encouraged parishioners to reflect upon the countless memories of grace they had experienced inside the church since its dedication in 1953.

More than 150 people attended the Closing Mass for Immaculate Heart of Mary Chapel in West Scranton on Saturday, June 27, 2026. (Photo/Eric Deabill)

“So, I have to ask this question,” Father Fox began his homily by saying. “Has anybody in this church been here since the first Mass that started way back in the early 1950s?”

Several hands rose throughout the pews. “You’ve seen the span from the first parenthesis when it opened to the second parenthesis tonight,” the long-time pastor continued. “It certainly is a world of experiences. Certainly, a world of memories.”

Looking around the church, Father Fox invited parishioners to absorb every familiar detail one last time.

“This Mass not only brings back all those memories, it helps us to experience once again all of those times in our lives,” he said. “After tonight, you are expected to be able to take those memories and carry them in your hearts.”

Comparing memories to dreams that quickly fade, Father Fox encouraged the faithful to create what he described as a mental “reel” of the chapel so they can continue sharing its story for years to come.

“When people talk about this particular place ... you can enter into that conversation with your particular perspective because you remember all the things that happened,” he explained. “I believe that we can keep that same technique alive here in our own day and age – to continue to tell the stories of what happened here at the corner of North Garfield and Oram Street.”

The conclusion of the liturgy provided parishioners with a final opportunity to say goodbye.

Father Fox led prayers throughout the church, stopping at the ambo, the cry room, the Marian statue and finally the altar before inviting everyone to come forward individually. Each person was encouraged to touch the altar, make the Sign of the Cross, and process out of the church one final time.

Among those given the honor of locking the Chapel doors for the last time were longtime parishioners John (Jack) and Paula Keenan.

“It is a sad day, bittersweet because we have been coming here for so many years,” Paula Keenan said.

She said she will especially remember the chapel’s crucifix and Marian statue as well as the atmosphere that made the church unique.

“It was so intimate coming to Mass here,” she reflected. “That is what I appreciated the most.”

Following the locking of the doors, the Blessed Sacrament was reverently transferred by limousine from Immaculate Heart of Mary Chapel to Saint Patrick Church on Jackson Street, where the People of God will continue to carry the church’s mission forward.

Couples renew vows, celebrate gift of marriage at Wedding Anniversary Mass

SCRANTON – A total of 172 married couples from 69 parishes across the Diocese of Scranton gathered at the Cathedral of Saint Peter on Sunday, June 28, 2026, for the annual Diocesan Wedding Anniversary Mass which honors couples marking milestone anniversaries.

The liturgy was celebrated by the Most Rev. Joseph C. Bambera, Bishop of Scranton, on the Thirteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time and included couples celebrating 10, 25, 40 and 50 years of marriage and beyond.

In all, the couples attending the Mass signified 6,580 years of married life.

In his homily, Bishop Bambera reflected on the Sunday Gospel from Saint Matthew, acknowledging that Jesus' words about the demands of discipleship might initially seem surprising in the context of a celebration of marriage.

He noted, however, that authentic discipleship is rooted in selfless love, sacrifice and perseverance. Those are all qualities that also define a faithful married life.

"Your marriage has endured not because the years have been perfect, but because you have come to see marriage as part of something much bigger than yourselves," Bishop Bambera said, pointing to the "mystery of God's love discovered in your lives together."

He encouraged all couples to recognize both the struggles and blessings that shape their vocation, and to see "the face of God abiding within the heart of the one you love."

Following the homily, couples renewed their marriage vows and at the conclusion of the Mass, a reception followed the Mass at the Diocesan Pastoral Center across the street from the Cathedral.

Among those celebrating their 10th anniversary were Thomas (T.J.) and Christina Masteller of Saint Jude Parish in Mountain Top, who reflected on the grace they have experienced in their marriage.

"There is so much grace in celebrating the sacrament," Christina said. "We know that there is strength in that, and Lord knows you need that in a marriage."

Her husband added that forgiveness is essential.

"There are going to be ups and downs and trials," Thomas added. "Nothing is easy, but being able to forgive one another is the most important piece."

John Gablonski and Rita Ives of Saint Faustina Kowalska Parish in Nanticoke, who are also marking 10 years, spoke of the gift of finding one another later in life.

"We're actually second marriages. We're both widows and just the fact that we met each other and we're able to be together in marriage is a great gift for us," Rita said. "I never thought that we'd celebrate any type of milestone anniversary."

"It was a pleasure to be able to do this," John added. "It was very spiritual. It was amazing."

Celebrating 25 years of marriage, Katherine and Diego Pelaez of Saint Luke Parish in Stroudsburg emphasized faith and communication as the secrets to a happy marriage.

"To have Christ first in your marriage," Katherine said.

Diego added, "Having God in the center of our life, in the center of our lives basically to keep us together, along with communication, quick forgiveness and compromise."

Those were very similar sentiments shared by Bishop Bambera, who indicated that marriage is sustained through faith, forgiveness and the daily decision to love selflessly.

Quoting Pope Leo XIV, the Bishop reminded couples that "Marriage is not an ideal ... but the measure of true love between a man and a woman."

Vacation Bible School brings Moses' story to life in neighborhood creek

SCRANTON – The story of Moses being rescued from the Nile River is one that many children read in the Bible. At Mary Mother of God Parish's Vacation Bible School, youngsters were able to watch a reenactment of it unfold before their eyes.

On the final day of the parish's four-day Vacation Bible School, held June 22-25, children walked just a block from the Holy Rosary Church to Leggetts Creek, where volunteers reenacted the Old Testament story of the infant Moses being placed in a basket among the reeds and discovered by Pharaoh's daughter.

The memorable lesson helped the young children better understand how God protected Moses, who would later lead the Hebrew people out of slavery in Egypt.

"We don't have too many mountains around here, but we do have Leggetts Creek and it's moving just enough that it can move the basket down the river," Father Cyril Edwards, Pastor of Mary Mother of God Parish, said. "I'm not a teacher by trade but teachers say, 'Teach me and I'll get it, but involve me and I'll understand.'"

Father Edwards said using the creek will hopefully help the children experience Scripture in a way that they will long remember.

"I hope they understand that God works in mysterious ways. The baby being in the river was a one in a million chance that it would be found by Pharaoh's daughter," Father Edwards reflected.

The reenactment complemented this year's Vacation Bible School theme, "Jesus Loves Us."

"God never abandons his people," Father Edwards added.

The parish's Vacation Bible School welcomed preschoolers through fourth-grade students for mornings filled with Bible lessons, music, crafts, games, and prayer, while teenage volunteers helped lead activities and mentor younger children.

"I love working with my church," volunteer Molly

Fenwick said. "I have such a strong faith, and I love getting to share my faith with the younger generation in hopes that their faith is very strong too."

"I like being with the kids and just helping and giving back," volunteer Anna Woody said.

For fourth-grader Annabelle Converse, the creek activity became one of the week's highlights.

"People were down there and they showed examples to help people picture it," she said.

Along with learning Bible stories, children also took home lessons that will last well beyond the summer.

"We're learning kindness," Annabelle said.

Her classmate, Anna Belle Mackey, agreed.

"Always be nice to everybody," she said.

Kids grow in faith through fun and friendship at Vacation Bible School

DUNMORE – From making colorful necklaces and singing songs for Mass to learning about God's gift of creation, children participating in this year's Vacation Bible School in Dunmore discovered that faith is best experienced together.

Held June 15-19, 2026, on the grounds of Saint Rocco Church, the weeklong program welcomed children from Saints Anthony and Rocco Parish and Our Lady of Mount Carmel Parish, just days before the two communities consolidated into what is now Saint John Paul II Parish.

Guided by teen and adult volunteers, campers rotated through music, craft, Bible stories, outdoor games, and hands-on activities, all centered around this year's rainforest theme.

For Avery Shivock, who will enter fourth grade this fall, this summer marked her final year as a Vacation Bible School camper before she hopes to someday return as a volunteer.

"There are a lot of fun activities here," Shivock said. "You make new friends and learn new things. It's really nice."

Among her favorite activities is the craft station, where campers created colorful necklaces on the opening day.

"You learn how to be helpful; you learn a lot about the Bible. There is a great variety," she added.

Many of the volunteers guiding the young campers once stood in their shoes.

"I've been doing this camp since I was a little girl and now helping at it is a great experience," high school volunteer Mollie Urban said. "I honestly love being able to help the children. It's very fun and I love seeing the smiles on their faces."

Parish, helped lead the music sessions, teaching songs the children would later sing during the closing Mass of Vacation Bible School.

"I want the kids to know that faith doesn't have to be boring," she said. "It can be fun and it can be joyful, and I think music is a really great way to do that."

Throughout the week, children learned that God is present in every moment of their life.

Fifth-grader Grace Markovich said one lesson especially stayed with her.

"We learned that God is with us when we're sad, happy, sick. He's always with us, no matter what," Markovich said.

For Sister Donna Cerminaro, M.P.F., Director of Religious Education, seeing former campers return as volunteers each year has become one of the program's greatest blessings.

"We have been doing this for about 15 years," she said. "We have many volunteers. In fact, our leaders are high school kids and seventh and eighth graders. They keep on coming back every year. They just walk through the door and say, 'I am here to help.'"

Sister Donna loves to watch the program continue to bear fruit year after year.

"I hope they have a better understanding of God and a better understanding of the Bible," she said.

More than 130 students attend Vacation Bible School in Moscow

MOSCOW - More than 130 young students and 100 volunteers took part in Vacation Bible School at Saint Catherine of Siena Parish in Moscow during the week of June 22-26, 2026.

This year's theme was "Rainforest Falls" and an elaborate miniature rainforest was set up in the lower level of the church and volunteers even built a moveable indoor/outdoor boat.

At the conclusion of the weeklong event, a cookout was held for all of the students and families.

Vacation Bible Camp brings kids together in Pike County

MILFORD - Over the course of three days, Vacation Bible Camp at Saint Patrick Parish in Milford, directed by catechist Laurie Barcia, brought 29 children together for a fun-filled and faith-centered experience.

The campers enjoyed Bible lessons, exploring Scripture and engaging activities, including crafts, games, art and sports, including volleyball and kickball.

The combination of Bible teaching, teamwork, outdoor activities and artistic projects, supported by a great team of volunteers, made the camp experience a memorable opportunity for spiritual growth, friendship and fun for everyone involved.

Historic Shrine preserves Saint John Neumann's missionary spirit

SUGAR RIDGE – More than 170 years after Saint John Neumann walked through the hills of northeastern Pennsylvania to minister to small communities of Catholic settlers, the faithful continue making the journey to a church that preserves his remarkable legacy.

On July 12, 2026, faithful gathered at the Saint John Neumann Shrine in Sugar Ridge for the first of three summer Masses celebrated annually at the historic chapel, officially known as the Church of Saints Philip and James.

Designated as the Diocese of Scranton's official Saint John Neumann Shrine in September 1977, the simple country church occupies the very site where the fourth Bishop of Philadelphia blessed the original church in July 1854.

"Saint John (Neumann) was known for many things. One was traveling," Father Bert Kozen, Pastor of Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish in Dushore, said. "Whether by train, by coach, by horseback or by foot. As a matter of fact, he preferred foot because being five-foot-two, he found it difficult to ride a horse because his feet wouldn't have reached the stirrups."

According to local history, Bishop Neumann was visiting Catholics in Towanda when Katherine Leahy learned of his presence and walked several miles to ask him to visit the Irish Catholic families living near present-day Sugar Ridge.

True to his reputation as a tireless missionary, Bishop Neumann gladly made the journey on foot, celebrated the sacraments, blessed the land for a new church, and even assisted the local men as they began clearing timber for the original chapel.

"Another gift that Saint John Neumann had was the ability for languages. He spoke German, his native language, English, and he actually picked up Gaelic," Father Kozen explained. "His Gaelic was so attuned, people thought he was one of them and he wasn't."

For parishioner John Lambert, praying in the area where a future saint once walked carries profound meaning.

"To walk the ground where someone who was raised to be a saint is pretty neat," Lambert said. "To have it in your own backyard is something special."

Lambert knows well the intricacies of the Shrine property. He says the church has no heat – which is why they choose to have select Masses in the summer. Even more interesting, while the church has electricity, there is only one outlet in the building.

Although he was a bishop for only eight years, the future-saint left his mark throughout the wide expanse which would later comprise the Diocese of Scranton. Bishop Neumann blessed corner stones; he confirmed; he heard confessions; he baptized children; and he placed his signature on many parish ledgers.

The faithful say he left a spiritual legacy that is significant even today.

"He lived in times similar to today, troubled times," Lambert explained. "The people he ministered to here were not well liked. It was the time of the 'know-nothings' and church burnings in Philadelphia. We were looked down on. We were the 'dirty Irish.' But he came. And he wasn't Irish."

Patrick Cullen's connection is even more personal.

His great-great-great grandmother, Katherine Leahy, was the woman who invited Bishop Neumann to Sugar Ridge.

"He was good enough to come out this way, give the sacraments, bless the land and clear a spot for the first church," Cullen said. "I think it's a great example of living your faith."

The remaining summer Masses at the Saint John Neumann Shrine will be celebrated on Sunday, Aug. 2, and Sunday, Sept. 6, at 2:30 p.m. The September liturgy will include a Healing Mass followed by a parish picnic hosted by the Knights of Columbus.

Catholic Youth Center gives children a summer filled with opportunity

WILKES-BARRE — For several hundred kids across the Wyoming Valley, this summer is about much more than just a break from school.

It is about discovering new places, making lifelong friendships, and learning new skills at the Wyoming Valley Catholic Youth Center in Wilkes-Barre.

The CYC has once again become a summer destination for many local families, with 209 children enrolled in this year's summer camp program and another 30 youngsters already on a waiting list. The strong demand reflects both the popularity of the program and the vital role it plays in serving families throughout the community.

"We start getting calls in February hoping to reserve space for our camp," CYC Executive Director Mark Soprano said. "It's a very popular program."

Operating from the day schools dismiss for summer until classes resume in the fall, the CYC provides families with dependable, full-day care while giving children experiences many might not otherwise have.

"It's an easy transition for parents," Soprano explained. "They don't have to worry about where their kids are going in the summer."

For many working families, particularly those facing economic challenges, that consistency provides welcome peace of mind. As the school year ends, children simply transition from the CYC's before- and after-school programs into its summer program, where every day brings something new.

Rather than repeating the same routine, the CYC fills each week with themed activities, guest presenters and field trips that combine recreation with education. Campers spend time playing sports, swimming, visiting local parks and even tending the facility's growing garden.

Throughout the summer, the kids will travel to places like the Electric City Aquarium, Lackawanna Coal Mine Tour, Hillside Farms, Frances Slocum State Park, Kirby Park and even the Pennsylvania State Capitol.

"We try to make it interesting for the kids, that they're not doing the same thing day after day," Soprano said. "We want to make it as interesting and fun as possible for the kids but also educate them a little bit about the area and different things around."

One recent conversation Soprano had with campers reinforced why all the opportunities matter.

"When I was picking the kids up on one of the last days of school, I asked them, 'What are you doing this summer?'" Soprano recalled. "The only activity I got from the kids was, 'I'm going to my cousin's swimming pool.' That struck me. These kids aren't going to be doing anything, and they'll be spending a majority of their summer with us here at the CYC."

CYC helps students build a love of reading one page at a time

WILKES-BARRE — For many students, summer can mean taking a break from books.

Staff members at the Wyoming Valley Catholic Youth Center don't want that to be the case this year — and are working to build a lifelong love of reading with their youngsters.

This summer, a number of children participating in the CYC's summer camp program are taking part in a special literacy initiative designed to keep young minds engaged.

"This past school year, we partnered with the McGlynn Center for a tutoring program for our children which is very needed. To piggyback on that, we're doing a summer reading challenge," CYC Executive Director Mark Soprano said. "They have 55 children there. We're selecting 55 children here at the CYC and we will see which group of kids reads more."

Lola Williamson, left, and Gianna Ranieli, enjoy reading during their experience at the summer camp program at the Wyoming Valley Catholic Youth Center in Wilkes-Barre. This summer, the agency is holding a friendly competition with the McGlynn Center in Wilkes-Barre to see which agency can have students read the most. (Photo/Eric Deabill)

Through a partnership with United Way, the CYC has several thousand books available, and students are allowed to bring them home and even keep them if desired.

"We're encouraging parents to read with their children in the evenings and on the weekend. We want them to make it a habit of reading," Soprano added. "We know that when kids leave school in the springtime, especially reading, regresses a little bit. We don't want that to happen with our children."

For many campers, reading has become one of the highlights of the day.

Young pilgrims encounter Christ at Steubenville Conference

STEUBENVILLE – More than 150 young people, clergy, and chaperones from parishes across the Diocese of Scranton spent the weekend of July 10-12, 2026, discovering they are far from alone in living their Catholic faith.

A Diocesan delegation of 155 pilgrims – including 113 youth, 35 chaperones, one deacon and six priests – traveled by bus to the Steubenville Youth Conference at Franciscan University of Steubenville in Ohio.

Through engaging speakers, Eucharistic Adoration, worship, music, and the Sacraments, the students joined thousands of other young Catholics from across the country for a weekend centered on growing closer to Christ.

For many, including 18-year-old Hannah Rocco of Saint Eulalia Parish in Roaring Brook Township, it was their first experience at the nationally recognized conference.

“I’m super excited,” Rocco said before departing. “I’m excited to meet people from other parishes. I’m hoping for good Adoration and prayer time, but mostly the connection.”

That desire for connection was echoed by brothers Michael and Ayden Biagi, who participate in the life of Saint John Paul II Parish in Dunmore.

“I’m looking forward to growing in my faith,” Michael said. “I think it’s going to bring a whole lot of people together that are all the same age and show us that it’s okay to not be like the rest of the flock and follow what the world wants and instead follow what God wants us to follow.”

His younger brother, Ayden, looked forward to meeting other Catholic teenagers who openly share their faith.

“I’ve never done an experience like this,” he said. “I’m excited that you can profess your faith and not be like – is this person going to judge me based on this.”

Father Thomas Dzwonczyk, Assistant Pastor of Saint John Paul II Parish, accompanied the Biagi brothers and several other young people from his newly consolidated parish, calling the conference an opportunity for them to deepen their faith while forming lasting friendships.

“For them to experience this and say it’s okay to be ‘on fire’ for Jesus, and then to bring that back here to the Diocese of Scranton, it’s going to be wonderful,” Father Dzwonczyk said. “I hope they realize there are people right here who are taking the faith seriously and want it to be a major part of their life.”

As they returned home, the pilgrims expressed their gratitude to the faithful of the Diocese of Scranton for their prayers and support of the Catholic Ministries Appeal which makes experiences like this possible.

CYC summer camp engages minds and bodies

For Victoria Ortiz, who will enter fifth grade this fall, that’s exactly what makes the CYC summer program special.

“It’s fun,” she said. “We do multiple activities. We go to the park. We go swimming. We do fun activities.”

Ortiz had just participated in a reptile presentation from a local business where she got to touch various snakes and even an alligator.

“I got scared for the alligator because it looked scary and it was big,” she added.

Jasper Gomez Colon, who is entering sixth grade, likes the CYC summer program because it gives him the chance to stay active and spend time with friends.

“Every time we come to the gym in the morning, I play basketball,” he said. “Every time I play with my friends, I’m getting better. We get to swim too. It’s really fun.”

While children enjoy the activities, staff members recognize that the greatest impact often goes far beyond games and field trips.

For nearly eight years, Dontaye

Dutchin has worked at the CYC, wearing many hats while mentoring the children entrusted to the program.

“It’s the kids,” Dutchin said. “Every day there is something new. I feel like there is a purpose here. When I come in in the morning, everyone is like, ‘Mr. Dontaye!’ They fulfill me. The kids get their hooks in you and it’s impossible to walk away from them.”

Dutchin says many of the children simply need someone willing to listen and care.

“These kids have a lot of tough stories,” he said. “Whenever anyone has a tough weekend or a tough day, I say, ‘Let me hear about it.’ A lot of them don’t have anybody else.”

As Dutchin finished sharing that thought, one of the campers quietly walked up behind him and wrapped both arms around him in an unexpected hug.

That spontaneous gesture captured the importance of the CYC without words – highlighting the Wilkes-Barre facility is a place where children find not only a fun-filled summer, but caring adults who remind them they are valued and supported.

Competition shows importance of reading

“I like to read chapter books, and I like to read princess books,” Lola Williamson, who will enter second grade this fall. “When you read, you get to learn about things.”

Her favorite? Sleeping Beauty.

Williamson says keeping up with reading during the summer has its rewards when school begins again.

“I like to do it because I get good grades, sometimes 90s and 100s,” she added.

Fellow camper Gianna Ranieli, who is also entering second grade, enjoys discovering new stories through books.

“I practice in the summer with my dad. I read really hard words and try to pronounce them,” Ranieli said. “It’s very fun to read. I love reading.”

When the summer reading challenge ends at the end of July, the CYC is planning to hold a pizza party with prizes and awards for participants.

“We’re looking forward to a celebration and really rewarding the kids, whether they read one page or 100 books, for their accomplishments this summer,” Soprano said.

Music and culture unite hundreds on World Refugee Day

SCRANTON — Music became a powerful force for unity, bringing together cultures, generations, and communities at the Diocesan Pastoral Center on Saturday, June 20, 2026.

From a performance by Ukrainian singers to energetic dances celebrating the traditions of Bhutan, the Democratic Republic of the Congo and Hispanic cultures, each act drew applause from the crowd gathered for the tenth annual World Refugee Day celebration in Scranton.

The performances — featuring everyone from young children to seasoned professionals — helped to spark conversations that crossed cultural boundaries.

By the end of the event, many people who had spent the day watching from their seats were invited up onto the stage together, offering a joyful witness that community can be built one song, one dance, and one friendship at a time.

That spirit of welcome and belonging defined the World Refugee Day event, which welcomed an estimated 400 people to honor the resilience, courage and contributions of refugees who now call northeastern Pennsylvania home.

Organized by more than two dozen community organizations, the free event embraced this year's theme, "A World Where Refugees Are Always Welcomed."

"This event is to celebrate the refugees that are here in Scranton," Fikile Ryder, Director of Community for Catholic Social Services of the Diocese of Scranton and co-chair of the celebration, said. "Immigrants built the United States. Having refugees and immigrants in the United States strengthens the economy. They bring in different skills that can be used, which makes Scranton and the United States richer."

Ryder explained that refugees often leave everything behind because of war, persecution, and violence, arriving in a new country where they know few, if any, people.

"That resilience of coming and building a new life in a new country where they don't know anybody," Ryder said. "This event is for us to let them know that they are welcome."

The afternoon began with welcoming remarks from Ryder and Julie Schumacher

Cohen, Assistant Vice President for Community Engagement and Government Affairs at The University of Scranton, who served as co-chair of this year's celebration.

Father Gerald W. Shantillo, V.G., represented the Most Rev. Joseph C. Bambera, who was in Rome during the event, followed by remarks from Scranton Mayor Paige Cagnetti, representatives of the local Congolese and Bhutanese communities, and a representative from Governor Josh Shapiro's office, who presented a proclamation recognizing June as Immigrant Heritage Month and June 20 specifically as Refugee Day.

Throughout the event, the celebration utilized multiple parts of the Diocesan Pastoral Center.

Dozens of community organizations filled the atrium with interactive exhibits and valuable resources.

The Edward R. Leahy Jr. Clinic for the Uninsured offered free blood pressure screenings, while Friends of the Poor and Catherine McAuley Center provided free clothing for anyone in need.

As an introduction to the Faith250 initiative, Temple Hesed and the Scranton Area Multifaith Ministerium invited children and adults alike to create Statue of Liberty crowns and torches before posing for photographs in front of a New York

City skyline backdrop, offering a creative reminder that the 'torch of welcoming' must be passed from one generation to the next.

The gymnasium buzzed with activity as children enjoyed face painting, soccer games, hula hoops, and other family-friendly events.

Visitors were also able to sample international foods representing cultures different from their own.

"World Refugee Day is a global event, but we like to bring it local," Schumacher Cohen explained. "This is a city that is known for its immigrant heritage. Many people from around the world came here to work in the coal mines more than 100 years ago. We still have many immigrants and refugees who have come here to make it their home."

Joe Mahoney, Chief Executive Officer of Catholic Social Services, said the celebration demonstrates that welcoming refugees is about much more than words.

"We are celebrating the refugees that come and make our community great," Mahoney said. "We really want to welcome people with companionship, with food."

Reflecting on his own family's Irish roots, Mahoney said refugees enrich communities in countless ways.

"It's not just the food; it's the different ways of solving problems," he said. "We are stronger together."

2025-2026 Catholic Ministries Appeal concludes raising more than $4.2 million

SCRANTON - Thank you for your generous support of the 2025–2026 Catholic Ministries Appeal!

Over the past year, more than 17,500 commitments were made to the Appeal, with 36 parishes meeting or exceeding their individual goals.

While the total number of gifts was slightly lower than the previous year, approximately 850 fewer, the spirit of faithful stewardship remained strong.

Thanks to the extraordinary generosity of you, our donors, the Appeal raised approximately $110,000 more than last year.

The final results for CMA Commitments versus parish goals appear on the adjacent page. Notably, 68 parishes exceeded the total dollars committed this year versus last year. This is a very promising sign as we look to meeting our goals in the upcoming year.

Your support continues to strengthen the vital ministries funded through the Catholic Ministries Appeal.

This year, our Catholic Schools achieved a balanced budget through several important initiatives, including the support provided through the Appeal.

Catholic Social Services has also been able to respond to the growing needs of our communities, providing assistance to individuals and families facing food insecurity, homelessness, and other hardships.

With preparations underway for the 2026-2027 Catholic Ministries Appeal, we hope to see continued growth in support as we work to share the impact of your generosity throughout northeastern and north central Pennsylvania.

None of this important work would be possible without your generosity. Thank you for your commitment to your parish, to the ministries of the Diocese of Scranton, and for responding so generously to Our Call to Serve.

Thank You to Everyone Who Supported the 2025-2026 Catholic Ministries Appeal. We Raised More than $4.24 Million to Fund Critical Catholic Ministries and Programs this year!

SSPX carries out unauthorized consecration of four bishops

(OSV News) - Despite a personal appeal from Pope Leo XIV, the Society of St. Pius X went ahead July 1 with the unauthorized consecration of four new bishops at its seminary in Écône, Switzerland, with Mass broadcasted live and thousands of faithful attending.

The pope warned in his letter dated June 29 - the Feast of Saints Peter and Paul - that the move would cause a formal schism and deprive followers of lawful, and in some cases valid, access to the sacraments.

“In this spirit, and filled with Christian affection, I plead with you and ask you with all my heart: please turn back!” the pope said in a letter addressed to Father Davide Pagliarani, superior general of the society, commonly known as the SSPX. The Vatican published the letter June 30.

“I urge you to consider carefully the spiritual good of the faithful, because the schismatic act you are about to undertake would deprive them of the licit and, in some cases, even valid reception of the Sacraments, which they love and seek for their sanctification,” Pope Leo wrote.

The ceremony kicked off with a lengthy oath in Latin, read by one of the newly consecrated SSPX bishops, who claimed obedience to Peter Apostle, Holy Roman Church and Pope Leo XIV - naming the current pontiff, who, along with his doctrinal chief, Cardinal Victor Manuel Fernández, prefect of the Dicastery for the Doctrine of the Faith, offered to continue dialogue with the SSPX on the condition that the society suspend its decision to consecrate new bishops.

After the SSPX chose not to accept, Cardinal Fernández said the consecration of bishops without a papal mandate would be considered “a schismatic act” and would incur excommunication.

Pope Leo told journalists outside Castel Gandolfo June 17 that the decision to proceed “is their choice.”

In his homily on July 1, Father Pagliarani called the consecration an “exceptional” measure “proportionate to this necessity” and in line with “a duty to keep the faith that the Church has always taught.”

Saying that “some might consider that we are facing a dilemma,” Father Pagliarani said SSPX did not choose “between faith and the Church.”

“We belong to the Church first and foremost through faith, through the complete profession of faith, through the complete profession of the Church’s faith,” he said, noting: “We live in the same house.”

Four priests were consecrated bishops in the July 1 ceremony: Fathers Pascal Schreiber from Switzerland, Michael Goldade from the United States, Michel Poininet de Sivry and Marc Hanappier - both from France. Presiding over the Mass was Msgr. Alfonso de Galarreta. Organizers estimated 16,600 adults were present at the ceremony, with many children attending as well.

On June 30, following the pope’s letter, Father Pagliarani appeared undeterred from proceeding with the consecration, pressing Pope Leo to “consider the authenticity of this intention before making a decision concerning the Society of Saint Pius X.”

On July 1 the head of the society stated: “We are accused of not loving the pope,” noting that “it is because we sincerely love the Pope, as Vicar of Christ, as head of the Church, that we no longer want to see the pope humiliated alongside false pastors representing false religions.”

In 1988, St. John Paul II excommunicated the society’s founder, Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre (1905-1991), and four bishops consecrated without papal mandate. Nevertheless, for decades, the Vatican had sought ways to fully reintegrate SSPX members into the life of the Catholic Church.

Talks between the Vatican and the society began under St. John Paul and continued during the pontificates of Popes Benedict XVI and Francis.

Pope Benedict lifted the excommunications of the four bishops in 2009, opening the way for more regular talks.

Father Pagliarani referred to the 1988 excommunications during his homily, asking: “Did those who condemned the fraternity foresee its dissolution?” “Providence had another plan,” he said, suggesting that “God has not abandoned” SSPX and calling it a “sacrifice” that the society is now “considered as rebels.”

“All evils come from sin,” Father Pagliarani added, suggesting that through consecration unauthorized by the successor of Peter, SSPX wanted to “continue preaching the precious Blood of Our Lord, and we want to continue, in a certain way, to pour it out on souls.”

Father Pagliarani concluded with his advice for SSPX bishops: “Be as simple as doves and as shrewd as serpents,” explaining that they must act like serpents to “discern, grasp, and capture the duplicity, ambiguity, and cunning that are in the world and in the enemies of the cross.”

“Your worst enemies will not attack you head-on; they will try to make you slip,” he concluded.

Bishop Bambera’s Statement on the Society of Saint Pius X (SSPX)

July 9, 2026

It is with great sadness that I join the universal Church in acknowledging the painful division that has resulted from the Society of Saint Pius X’s (SSPX) decision to proceed with the unauthorized ordination of four bishops on July 1, 2026, without the proper pontifical mandate and against the will of the Holy Father.

Throughout the years, several popes have worked to restore full communion with the SSPX which is why these recent events have been so painful. Please join me in praying that these efforts may one day bear fruit and that the unity for which Christ prayed will be restored.

While the Society of Saint Pius X maintains a presence within the geographic boundaries of the 11 counties of the Diocese of Scranton, it is important for me to note that no parish, chapel, school, or ministry of the Diocese is currently administered by the Society or its clergy.

For any individual who has worshipped with the Society of Saint Pius X, or who may have questions about these recent developments, I want to assure you of my prayers and pastoral concern. The Dicastery for the Doctrine of the Faith has issued guidance for both clergy and lay faithful who wish to remain in full communion with the Catholic Church.

Most importantly, in light of the formal schism of the SSPX, Roman Catholics who desire to remain in good standing with the Church should not participate in liturgies celebrated by bishops or priests of the Society of Saint Pius X or receive the sacraments from them, including Baptism, Confirmation, Holy Eucharist, Penance, Marriage, and Holy Orders. Canon law provides an exception only in the case of immediate danger of death.

I recognize that many Catholics who have attended the Society’s chapels have done so because of their deep love for the Church’s liturgical tradition, especially the celebration of the Mass according to the 1962 Roman Missal. That desire for the traditional Latin Mass can be fully lived within the communion of the Catholic Church.

Here in the Diocese of Scranton, the traditional Latin Mass is celebrated regularly at Saint Michael Parish in Scranton by priests of the Priestly Fraternity of Saint Peter (FSSP), a priestly fraternity that is in full communion with the Holy Father and the Catholic Church.

At this challenging time, I ask all faithful to pray for healing, reconciliation, and unity within the Church, that we remain steadfast in our fidelity to the Successor of Saint Peter.

Most Reverend Joseph C. Bambera, D.D, J.C.L.
Bishop of Scranton

Pope Leo invites Americans to cultivate 'moral greatness' as he accepts Liberty Medal

PHILADELPHIA (OSV News) - Religious liberty "holds sacred the inner sphere of the person where convictions are formed and where conscience can guide the decisions made in the intimacy of the human heart," said Pope Leo XIV, as he accepted a major civic award for upholding freedom of belief on the eve of the nation's 250th anniversary.

The first U.S.-born pope shared his thoughts - which centered religious liberty within a vision of God-given human dignity, and which called the nation back to shared founding ideals - during a July 3 acceptance address for the Liberty Medal, bestowed by the National Constitution Center in Philadelphia, that was livestreamed from the Vatican.

Describing himself as "a son of this great country," Pope Leo asked for "God's blessings upon America's future" and prayed that the nation's 250th anniversary would be "the occasion of a solemn recommitment to these ideals that have made America a country that values peace and prosperity, a country characterized by generosity and nobility of heart."

He noted "the moral greatness of a nation is manifested, above all, in its capacity to support, protect and cherish the lives of all, especially the most vulnerable and those whose worth is questioned."

He hoped that "the principles we have reflected upon today - a shared human dignity, equality and the rights laid out in the Declaration of Independence - ever be a source of such unity and a guiding light for the present moment and for the years to come."

SCRANTON — The Congregation of the Sisters, Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary invites the community to its 2026 Sisters Celebration on Friday, July 31, at Nazareth Hall on the campus of Marywood University.

The celebration honoring the IHM spirit and supporting retired Immaculate Heart of Mary Sisters begins with a reception at 5:30 p.m., followed by the program.

The evening will feature the presentation of the Spirit of IHM Awards to three prominent area individuals for their commitment to and embodiment of the IHM spirit and mission:

Tickets to the event are $100 per person, with all proceeds helping with the care of the retired IHM Sisters.

In addition to attending the event, individuals can honor a Sister, an award recipient, or a loved one by becoming an event sponsor. Sponsorships start at $25.

"Many individuals choose to honor a Sister who taught them in school and made an impact on their life or the lives of their family members," Immaculate Heart of Mary Sister Ann Monica Bubser, Director of Development for the IHM Sisters, stated.

The event is hosted by the Sisters of IHM Foundation, established in 2013 to support retired IHM Sisters who require varied levels of care.

MISSION MESSAGE

The Catholic Church in Venezuela Needs Our Help

By Shannon Ruiz
Diocesan Director,
Pontifical Mission Societies

When the ground shook beneath Venezuela on the evening of June 24, it did so twice: A 7.2-magnitude earthquake was followed — just 39 seconds later — by a 7.5-magnitude mainshock. Together, they unleashed destruction not seen in that country in more than a century.

More than 4,000 have lost their lives. The numbers are still moving, and the full scale of the tragedy has yet to be counted. Thousands more are injured. Tens of thousands are missing. In the coastal state of La Guaira — declared a disaster zone — entire city blocks have been reduced to rubble. In Caracas, the Cathedral stands damaged among the many churches that bore the force of the quake.

But even as the earth was still trembling, the Church was already at work.

Parish doors swung open across the archdiocese to shelter families who had nowhere to go. Caritas Venezuela activated its network in every affected diocese, gathering information and coordinating relief. Archbishop Raúl Biord Castillo of Caracas walked through the rubble of his churches and, rather than lament what was lost, pointed to what remained: the people helping one another. “Amidst all of this,” he said, “we must all form a great network of solidarity to help those brothers and sisters who are suffering material losses. Human life is what is most important.”

Pope Leo XIV, moved by the suffering of the Venezuelan people, has already sent an initial emergency donation through the Dicastery for the Service of Charity — and the Vatican has made clear this is only a beginning, with further assistance to follow as the local Church identifies needs on the ground.

Father Ricardo Elías Guillén, National Director of Pontifical Mission Societies Venezuela, was on his way to La Guaira — the hardest-hit area — when he spoke with the US National Office. “The priests are safe,” he said. “But many parishes have been severely damaged, and much will need to be rebuilt.” And among the dead are children and young people who were part of the Missionary Childhood Association — the Pontifical Mission Society that nurtures the faith of the youngest members of the Church and channels their generosity toward children in need around the world. In La Guaira, some of those children are now among those the Church mourns.

On the ground, the immediate priorities are food, water, and medicine — supplies the local Church is already gathering and distributing. Father Guillén’s request was direct: help to keep buying what the people need most.

But before anything else, he asked for prayer. “This is a very hard trial for us,” he said, “for a people who already had so many difficulties. But we can only put ourselves in God’s hands, trust that He will sustain us, and console the people.”

That is the mission of the Church in Venezuela right now — to console, to serve, and to rebuild. It is a mission that belongs to all of us.

Please pray for the people of Venezuela. And if you are able, please give.

Bishop Bambera has invited all parishes of the Diocese of Scranton to consider taking up an optional second collection to assist those impacted by this tragedy.

All donations will be forwarded to the Catholic Relief Services Venezuela Relief Fund. You can also give online by visiting crs.org.

National Eucharistic Pilgrimage ends in Philly

(OSV News) - As the 2026 National Eucharistic Pilgrimage concluded amid the U.S.'s 250th anniversary, "the journey continues," Archbishop Nelson J. Pérez of Philadelphia said.

And, he added, "we're all walking to one place," with the path leading to the "powerful, transformative and lifegiving love of God."

The archbishop was the principal celebrant and homilist at the final liturgy for the pilgrimage, which took place July 5 at the Cathedral Basilica of Sts. Peter and Paul in Philadelphia.

At the start of the Mass, Pope Leo XIV addressed the faithful in a pre-recorded video message.

The pilgrimage traveled through most of the nation's original 13 colonies - spanning 18 dioceses and archdioceses - since its May 24 launch.

Who makes house calls?

As of October 2015, I will now meet clients either at their home, or at a location they choose and no longer require clients to meet at my office. I have decided that I would change the way I meet with people so it will be as easy and as convenient as possible for the client.

Based on my practice, which consists of estate planning and administration along with elder law, I find that clients are more comfortable discussing such matters in familiar surroundings. While I know this may seem unconventional to some, I believe I will be able to serve clients much better in this fashion.

If anyone is uncomfortable with home visits, I have a few locations where I can meet in an office setting. I look forward to meeting with my existing clients and especially meeting new clients that are looking for any assistance in estate or elder law matters.
